

LITTLETON'S HONORARY DOG MAYOR ELECTION 2021

MEET THE CANDIDATES

Arpad

Arpad is photographed in front of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Depot building, which was built in 1888 to accommodate the first Santa Fe railroad line.

A resident of Littleton, Arpad is a four-year-old Komondorok (Hungarian livestock breed).

He is excited to announce his candidacy for Honorary Dog Mayor. And his political platform is simple: treats and pets for all good boys and girls.

Augie

Augie is photographed in front of the signature Town Hall building located in the heart of Downtown Littleton at 2450 W. Main St. It was constructed in 1920 and served as Littleton's Town Hall until 1977.

A popular resident of Littleton, Augie had a beer named after him at St. Patrick's. It was called the Augie Dog Porter.

He loves to walk on the Mary Carter Greenway trail and meet new friends.

Bliss

Bliss is photographed in front of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Depot building, which was built in 1888 to accommodate the first Santa Fe railroad line.

Bliss' pet parents are native to Colorado and have called Littleton home for most of their lives.

As an aspiring therapy dog, Bliss likes to make others happy. And if elected for Honorary Dog Mayor, Bliss wants to "raise smiles instead of taxes."

Lenny

Lenny is photographed in front of the iconic Arapahoe County Courthouse building, which was built in 1907 and later restored.

Rescued off of Titan Road four years ago, Lenny now lives with his human family in Littleton. In addition to outdoor adventures, Lenny enjoys playing fetch and traveling.

You may recognize Lenny from walking along the Platte River trail or chasing the ball near The Bemis Library. Lenny also likes to go shopping at the dog-friendly stores in Littleton, and he loves to be pet.

Murdoch

Murdoch is photographed in front of The Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Depot, which was constructed in 1875. It was the first to provide rail service to Littleton and is one of the last remaining 19th-century stone depots in the nation.

This Basset Hound is a resident of Littleton and thinks he would make a “pawfect” mayor for his hometown. You may recognize him from his frequent walks along the South Platte River Trail. In addition to having long ears, Murdoch has a big heart and loves to make people happy.

Netty

Netty is photographed in front of the Batschelet Building. Prominent businessman Edward F. Batschelet, who operated a large ranch near Sedalia, built this two-story structure in 1908. The Littleton Museum considers the Batschelet Building “one of the finest remaining turn-of-the-century structures in Downtown Littleton.”

This French Bulldog spends a lot of time in Historic Downtown Littleton.

Nova

Nova is photographed in front of the signature Town Hall building located in the heart of Downtown Littleton at 2450 W. Main St. It was constructed in 1920 and served as Littleton's Town Hall until 1977.

Nova loves to explore the great city of Littleton. And Nova lives in a nearby house built in 1909—taking daily walks to Historic Downtown Littleton to greet fellow canines and their owners.

Red

Red is photographed in front of Littleton's first drivable fire truck: The Federal. Did you know that Littleton Fire Rescue started as a volunteer department in 1892? It wasn't until 1960 that the department started using professional firefighters, like Red's grandpa and dad.

Red has grown up in Littleton and enjoys hanging out in the Downtown Historic District at such places as Jackass Brewery and Ned Kelly's.

She is a Littleton girl through and through and would love to be the Honorary Dog Mayor!

Sugaree

Sugaree is photographed in front of the landmark Carnegie building, where the City of Littleton's first public library opened in 1917. For the last two decades, it has been the location of The Melting Pot restaurant.

When not working on mayoral campaigns, Sugaree enjoys playing with sticks and tennis balls, swimming and playing tug-of-war. This Littleton resident wants to be dog mayor to get lots of pets and make people happy.

Wilbur

Wilbur is photographed in front of the iconic Arapahoe County Courthouse building, which was built in 1907 and later restored.

Wilbur is a rescue dog who found his forever home in Littleton. He graduated from puppy training school in 2020 , where he learned to give out handshakes and kisses.

Wilbur loves to walk up and down Main Street. And if elected, he would advocate for treats as well as pets, kisses and more dog days of summer!
